“ We are sending our heartfelt condolences to the King family. We visited Sister King , prepared and shared meals with her, and conducted Bible Study at her home. She was such a gracious hostess, expressing joy and happiness that we were there. Our goal was to share the lessons with her and cheer her up, but she had a way of always providing us with cheer and encouragement. We will cherish the time that we spent with her. She will be missed!

“ I had the brief honor of taking care of Mrs. King during her stay at Willowbrook Manor from March 10th this year until her readmission to the hospital on May 3rd. I met her son James on multiple occasions and felt as if I had a chance to know Mrs. King and become familiar with her life and its accomplishments not only through what she was able to share with me but also what I was able to know about her through James.

She was a dignified and elegant lady who worked hard in the civil rights era with others, perhaps more widely-known and recognized than she, such as Rosa Parks. Though she was physically challenged in expressing her thoughts and values, as I was challenged in hearing and interpreting them, I was able to understand and admire her clear-headed expressions of values, preferences, expectations and love.

She was a grand lady, somewhat diminished by ill health and aging, but nothing can ever diminish the fine values and dedicated accomplishments of her life.

James, I am sorry for your loss. It has been a great honor to know you and your mother, and a privilege to be of help in some small ways.
