“ I just had to write a comment, because no-one feels your pain unless they have been through what you are going through. I lost a child just about 8 months ago and only prayers will ease your pain. Know that Baby Jayden is in heaven and he already has his wings. He is looking down on you making sure you and your family are safe and secure. Now you can tell everybody, you have your very own angel. God bless and things will get better. Just keep praying.
