“ Charisse was my grandma, we called her Gigi. I remember the day she died. She asked me to watch a movie with her, I told her I would after I finished my game after that she told me she loved me and I said it back. I never would think that it would be the last time she said it to me. Every now and then I think of her. How she wanted me to be successful and that's all I want to do. I want to make her proud. I want to become the woman she always wanted me to be and I'll work hard just like she did. May you rest in peace. Love you always and forever Gigi.
