Their marriage was a beautiful example of mutual respect, love, and support, and together they build a strong and faithful home. Charles found joy in spending time with family and friends, taking cruises with his wife Rose. He often hosting gatherings and creating a warm, welcoming environment for those around him. Music was another of his great joys, and he particularly enjoyed attending the Jazz Fest, where he could immerse himself in the rhythms and melodies that brought him happiness. But most of all, Charles cherished his spiritual life. He loved studying Jehovah's Word and especially enjoyed Bible discussions with some of his close brothers from the congregation. These moments of spiritual fellowship were among the most treasured in his life.

His family and friends will forever remember his gentle spirit, his kind heart, and the countless ways he touched their lives with his warmth and generosity. “ Rose, family, and friends, please accept my heartfelt sympathy on the passing of Charles. It will be the little things that you will remember; the quiet moments, the smiles, the laughter, the idiosyncrasies. And although it may seem hard right now, it will be the memories of these things that help to push away the pain, and bring the smiles back again. May Almighty God hold you close, comfort you, and sustain you during this difficult time.

My sincerest condolences
