“Charlie Webb”, that's what he use to say to me when he would come by the house and pick me up. He would say " Come take a ride with Charlie Webb". He was my oldest brother, who taught me everything I know today about the streets, how people will do you and what type of men to stay away from (laughing). He became more like a father to us when our father passed away in 1983 and I was only 20 years old. He was very wise and I learned a lot from him about life. I will forever keep you in my heart and I will truly miss calling you and saying "hey fat boy". I love you with all my heart!
Love always, your baby sister Ann Pompey-McKnight
