“ You would always say, "give me my flowers while I'm alive." "I can't sell them when I'm gone." I remember from the ages of 9 and 10, I bought you a flower every chance I could. You were my best friend before I knew what a friend was. When I was wrong, you would always correct me until I got it right....Fishing, Cooking, Reading, Listening, Understanding, morals, and discipline. I had initially never obtained a formal education, you were my greatest teacher from day one. When ever I made mistakes in life, you would never hold them against me and find a solution 100. You are the mother of all mothers in my book. I could go on for days, month, and years talking about you lady. I love you momma and I will never forget you. Happy mothers day. In my book, mother's day is everyday. Not just some single day Americans choose to dedicate to a woman's worth. Without you, there would be no us.

“ I am deeply saddened to learn of the death of Hazel. I can only pray and offer my condolences to the rest of the family. I am also regrettably pained that I did not get to know the woman she was and had become. I will never forget her. God be with you all in this time of bereavement. Agape Love, Marilyn Towner
