Mrs. Ivory Jones Pitts was born in Little Rock, Arkansas on March 24, 1927 to the late Jacob and Ruby Jones. As a child, Ivory spent a lot of time traveling between Arkansas and Michigan with her relatives, and as a young adult, she eventually decided to make Michigan her home. Ivory joined Gospel Temple Baptist Church at a very young age, but she later called Pentecostal Tabernacle Church of God in Christ her church home.

While living in Michigan, Ivory met a smooth-talking young man from Arkansas named Benjamin Pitts. Within a year, they were married. That marriage lasted over 60 years.

Ivory worked in retail for several years, and then she retired to enjoy life as a housewife. And enjoy life she did. She loved to go to Bingo with her sister, Inez. She also enjoyed going to the races, horses and dogs. She loved to travel to spend time with family and friends. The Blues Festival in Helena, Arkansas was one of her favorite events. The music was good, but her friend

Willie Mae's cooking was even better.

Preceding Ivory in death were her parents, Jacob and Ruby Jones; her sister, Inez Jones Johnson; her son Darryl Berry (Verinda); and her grand-daughter Andraea Miller.

Ivory leaves to cherish her memory her loving husband, Benjamin; her devoted daughter and caregiver Denice Pitts; sons Dana Berry, Christopher Berry, Kenneth Berry, and Frederick Berry; daughters Cheryl Miller (Hetley) and Elouise Exum; twenty grandchildren, forty great-grandchildren, ten great-great-grandchildren, several nieces, nephews, cousins, and a host of relatives and friends.
