“ *You know the longer our parents are here, the harder it is to let them go or believe they are gone. I didn't know your father very well but I heard he was a successful businessman. You had the best of everything. You and your father seemed to have a good relationship and I know you'll miss him very much. When someone dies, it makes you think of your own mortality. At least you have your children for comfort and support. I will have no one for comfort when my Mother leaves me. She is 84 and I look at her everyday, wondering when. On the other hand, I have two neighbors that had children, who did not do anything for their mother. I live with my mother now cause I worry about her. You and your father seemed to be close. My father died 10 years ago and although we were not that close, I knew I could depend on him. I hope you won't greive too long and your children will support you in your time of need.
