So many years have passed. Life has continued on. I've never come across this until tonight. There's no time limit on grieving. It comes and goes. A fragrance, a memory, or the sight of what could have. These things can cause the hurt of a loved one lost to come rushing in like a flood. Thank you guys years later.

I am a teacher who acquired some books and it touched my heart to see a book dedicated to the memory of Justus. Glad to see his memory will be kept alive and benefiting children.
