“ I remember when I was little I would sit and listen to you and Glen talk about everything under the sun but when you both realized I was listening. Glen would always say girl take my keys and go listen to the radio in my car.

Larry would see me doing my math homework and say girl that's easy and would do it for me. He would simplify it so much it would be wrong but when I would tell him it wasn't correct he would say it's something wrong with those teachers. So I would redo my homework every time he would help me. He was very smart. He was a pharmacist, paralegal, and could rebuild cars etc. If he didn't know how to do something he would study it and teach himself how to do it.

I will miss you my brother Rest In Peace.
