“ The Perry family would like to express our deepest sympathy, and Julius you know we love and will always be there for you in case you were ever in doubt. Love Michelle, Natalie, and Erin Perry

Erin Perry - April 06, 2009 at 12:00 AM

“ Please know that your family has our sincere deepest sympathy. I know the trials and tribulations that you all have endured during this trying time but we also know that through Christ all things are possible and this too shall pass. Linda will be missed but never forgotten. Also know that God is with you all and He will continue to take care of His children, especially during trying times like this. I will continue to keep you all in my prayers. God Bless.

“ Grief is always a very personal experience yet there are threads common to most situations. Death is a life-changing event for the survivors. We go through a gamut of emotions that can exact a significant toll on our well being. It is important to grieve the loss of someone you love. There really is no time limit for that. Throughout your life there will be, in your heart, the memories that never go away. If you need anything Julius let me and my family know we are here for you.
