“ I never thought I would be writing about you on a page or writing a poem to remember you. But I know the LORD makes no mistakes. I will always treasure our moments together and the things we spoke on. How we cried together, how we comforted each other. I am my sisters keeper and I will forever be your little sister. When the day comes that I close my eyes to not wake to see another day, I know my GOD will united me with my sisters, my brothers, mother, father and all those that have gone home to glory. Sis, I am lost for words and my soul feels a void once again. I am so happy you went to see Jesus so peacefully, I prayed at the foot of your bed and I said unto the LORD... THANK YOU JESUS FOR ALLOWING ME ALL THESE YEARS TO LOVE MY SISTER. You really spoke of this day and you told me how I would feel and you did get all your affairs in order down to the dress you picked out. Even when you spoke to me as if you were already with the LORD none of us wanted to hear that talk but what we failed to realize is that you had already had that talk with JESUS. I love you for eternity until we smile at each other again twin.....TODAY IS THE DAY.

“ Morris, I miss you already. You have touched so many peoples lives in a positive way. You truly loved your children. I am grateful for the conversations we had and all the laughters. We're definitely looking forward to catching up when I got to Michigan. I couldn't get there soon enough. We don't know the plans of Yahweh. I am pleased with knowing that we all left off of FaceTime with saying "I love you" and I will see you tomorrow. Keeping the family lifted up in a positive direction in prayers because this is heavy for everyone.
