Missionary Violet Jean Smith was born December 19, 1948 in Memphis, Tennessee, the daughter of Robert and Maudine Johnson. She was the oldest girl of 12 children. Violet graduated from Flint Central High School "class of 1967. She retired from the State of Michigan in 1997. Violet served on many boards at Victorious Believers Ministries as president of Hospitality, Sunday school teacher, and Missionary Circle. She enjoyed volunteering for American Cancer Society's Relay for Life, and on the board of the American Business Women Association. Violet was a loving mother, grandmother, sister, aunt, and friend. One of the names she loved to be called the most was nana. Some of her most precious moments were spending time with her great grandchildren, playing monopoly, watching movies, having a pig out, and having praise and worship. Spending time with family was the highlight of her life. The family game was monopoly, and she was very competitive, whenever played she always had to be the banker. Violet was a very intelligent and classy lady who loved to live through words.

She wrote her first poem "Searching" at the age of 14. She loved to read, so much that she would skip school to go to the library and would also read dictionaries for fun. Violet's sisters and brothers were her best friends, along with a host of cousins. She was the biggest cheerleader to family and friends! She loved hard and always tried to encourage others when they're feeling down and cover them in prayer. Missionary Violet Jean Smith leaves to cherish her memory: 3 daughters, Kimberly Vaughn, LaTosha Harris, and Carlotta Smith; 4 grandchildren, Courtney Whitfield, Travarious Cross, Dominique Harris, and Ashley Vaughn; 2 great-grandchildren, Erica Harper and Simone Harris; 2 sisters, Cecelia (Kevin) Mize and Latonia Johnson; 4 brothers, James Johnson, Charles Johnson, Larry Johnson and Kenneth (Joyce) Johnson; 6 nieces, Shuntai Walker, LaShunda (John) Edmonds, Tierra Johnson, Charlquanna Johnson, Scottasia Mize and Brittany Johnson; 7 nephews, Jermaine Johnson, Ladale Johnson, Charles Johnson, Kevin (Briann) Mize, Andre Johnson, Armonde Johnson and Breon Johnson; uncle, Theodore Johnson of Flint; special cousins, Geraldine Lewis of Sterling Heights, MI and Mary Louise Wilkes of Dallas, TX; Christopher Williams of Spouthfield, MI; a host of great-nieces, great-nephews, cousins, and friends including spiritual daughters, sons, nephews, and nieces. Missionary Smith was preceded in death by her father, Robert A Johnson; mother, Maudine E. Johnson; sisters, Carol Ann Johnson and Helen Marie Johnson; brothers, Richard Johnson and Scotty Johnson. The family would like to express a special thanks to Victorious Believers Ministries Church of God in Christ family, Pastor Michael and Bridget Hayes, the Lewis family, and Lawrence E. Moon Funeral Home.

“ The world will be a darker place without Violet, she was a true light in this world. Always ready to offer a kind word to all that needed one. Always there to help in a time of need. Just a beautiful person inside and out. We met at work 43 years ago and she immediately became my big sis. We still kept in touch and shared many laughs and memories even till the day she got her wings. I know that you are with our Heavenly Father and the rest of the family. I miss you Sis.
