“ My father in law was such a giving, patient man. I remember he “taught” me how to bowl. The only left handed bowler I’d known. He helped me because I am left handed. His laugh, jokes, and smile I will forever remember. RIP pops.

“ I've known Virgil practically all of my life, since I grew up in the same hick town that he was from, Pikeville, Kentucky! I didn't realize, back then that he would eventually marry my older sister Annette and since he was a few years older than me, I kind of looked up to him, growing up! Anyway, he loved to tell us about some of his life's experiences, so much so, that every time he would tell the story he would embellish a little more each time! So, the stories would grow bigger and bigger! About the time we (my brothers and I) became teenagers we gave him our own moniker, "Big Virg", and it was our own little private joke until I got old enough to explain it to him, without being disrespectful! I'll really miss those "fish stories"!

“ I first met Virgil bowling in a league with him at the old Northwest Bowl back in the early 80's. We were both pretty good bowlers and competitive but he was always fun to compete with. I did not see him again until I transferred to the Grand Blanc plant in 2003. He remembered be, and we made sure to talk a few minutes just about every day until he retired. Always a nice man, and I have fond memories. RIP.
