Walter Lane Jr. was born May 9, 1937, in Columbus, Mississippi, the son of Walter Lane, Sr. and Leola (Lane) Stephenson. He was a resident of Mt. Morris Michigan, he earned a GED after his military service in the US Army concluded. Walter was employed by Flint Metal Fabricating, a division of General Motors Corporation for 52 years until his retirement. He was a huge fan of the outdoors.

Walter enjoyed fishing for an assortment of fish in both fresh and saltwater locations as well as hunting for deer using a tree perched blind and a bow and arrow. He enjoyed jazz music and often visited historical sites throughout Mississippi, engaging the locals in conversation surrounding the lore of the legendary performers from that area. He was a hardworking man who not only fished and hunted but, in his later years, turned to gardening, growing his own fresh produce in his backyard. He could often be found in his "barn" BBQing, repairing equipment, hauling in produce from his crop, putting around his land, or simply relaxing and hosting friends and neighbors. These and other activities he engaged in with the help, assistance and companionship of his
